Is protest a safety valve against ISIS in Tunisia?

LOOT, in association with "Mouvement social populaire du Niger (MSPN) and Human Rights Watch, has condemned the military operations led by the National Security Forces (NSF) in the Kidal region of the north of Mali, which has caused the deaths of more than 20 people. The report, which was submitted to the UN Special Rapporteur on Extrajudicial, Summary, and Arbitrary Executions, highlights the lack of accountability and the lack of transparency in the investigation of these incidents.

The report states that the NSF has a history of extrajudicial executions and arbitrary detentions, and that the lack of accountability and transparency in the investigation of these incidents has allowed for a culture of impunity to flourish. The report recommends that the UN Special Rapporteur on Extrajudicial, Summary, and Arbitrary Executions should press for a thorough and impartial investigation into these incidents, and that the NSF should be held accountable for its actions.

The report also calls for the immediate release of all those detained by the NSF, and for the establishment of a truth and reconciliation process to address the long history of human rights abuses in the Kidal region.

Human Rights Watch has also condemned the military operations in the Kidal region, stating that they have resulted in the deaths of more than 20 people, including civilians.

Mali has been experiencing a prolonged conflict since 2012, with various armed groups fighting for control of territory. The conflict has resulted in widespread human rights abuses, including extrajudicial executions and arbitrary detentions.

The report urges the international community to press for a greater effort to bring an end to the conflict in Mali, and to ensure that those responsible for human rights abuses are held accountable.
